

Where can I find out more about the new IFDs?

An overview of the methods used for the new IFD estimates can be found in Green et al \(2012\). A draft Chapter for the revised Australian Rainfall and Runoff, which is currently in preparation and due to be released this year, will provide further explanation. The Bureau of Meteorology is also preparing a comprehensive report of the derivation of the new IFDs and will publish on this website when available.